Change in conditions of play to ensure completion

Three games of 18 ends will be played in The Devon Hotel Taranaki men's Open fours when post section commences this morning. That will come as a disappointment to some players, who thrive on the 25 end games. But after weighing up all factors, including the un-weather forecast, organisers have resolved that the highest priority is bringing the Open to a successful conclusion.

"There is a huge risk, given the weather, that we may not be able to complete the event if we stick with 25 ends and encounter more wet weather," Bowls Taranaki Executive Officer Ian Lewis said.

While the demand from players to stick with 25 ends is high, this would result in a Monday morning final even if no more time is lost.

Despite the reduction in the number of games, last Open final held on a Monday was in 2010. Broadcast arrangements and various team and individual travel plans have also been made, which a Sunday final would satisfy.

If three rounds are completed today at all six greens being used for post section, that will leave 12 teams remaining to play over the weekend. This being the case, 25 end games will resume. The Paritutu Indoor Complex would also be capable of accommodating the three to advance.
